“The Science of a Cocktail Party” The nonprofit fundraiser gets scientifically enhanced

(Chicago) - The Illinois Science Council is hosting its first ticketed fundraising event. There will be beautiful people and smart people and interesting people (often the same people), and food and drinks, and all things science. Too much fun to possibly explain here, so come and see for yourself.

Saturday, Feb. 4, 2012
Green Learning Center Showroom
DIRTT Environmental Solutions
325 N. Wells Street
8:00 - 11:00 p.m.
Tickets: ScienceCocktail.org

Guaranteed to brighten up your winter.

The Illinois Science Council is an independent 501c3 nonprofit organization that increases awareness and appreciation of science and technology among adults through engaging public programs.

This is a 21+ event.

SCIENCE COCKTAIL FAQs

Tickets – Available on-line at ScienceCocktail.org $70 per person; $60 – early bird price through Jan. 14; $85 at the door

Attire - Cocktail party but weather appropriate. That means, if you want to wear your cute party dress or cool new shirt - fantastic. But if it's cold and blizzard-y out and you can't imagine wearing anything but flannel-lined jeans and a big sweater, that's fine with us!

Parking - Self Park public parking garage is at Kinzie & Wells Streets, one block north of DIRTT.

Public Transit - Easy! Event is across the street from the southeast doors of Merchandise Mart on Wells. CTA brown line stop is on 2nd level of the Mart. Or, LaSalle #156 bus stops one block east.

Handicap accessible - yes, DIRTT is accessible.
